

Triad Technology Partners Announces the Addition of Colter Carambio to the Triad Leadership Team

BETHESDA, MD – Sep 8, 2015 – Triad Technology Partners, a leading provider of Cloud Solutions for Enterprise IT, is pleased to announce the addition of Colter Carambio as Vice President of Business Development and Partnerships at Triad. In this role, Mr. Carambio brings a first hand, thorough understanding of the real technology challenges facing Public Sector customers. Drawing on his deep expertise, Colter will expand Triad’s innovative technologies portfolio, focused on bringing “next generation solutions” to the Federal Government.

Colter Carambio brings a wealth of knowledge and experience working with both high level government technology executives and innovative vendors attempting to tackle the federal space. Before joining Triad, Colter was Director of Public Sector activities for Mocana, a leading-edge provider of mobile and Internet-of-Things security software. Prior to Mocana, Colter spent six years at In-Q-Tel where he served as the Director of Intelligence Community Support for several IQT partner agencies.

“I’m thrilled to help continue building out the impressive portfolio at Triad Technology Partners. It’s a wonderful opportunity to find and help connect cutting edge companies with new clients and markets, while at the same time delivering great value and capability to our customers. It’s clear that this is a successful, high-performing team, and I’m truly excited to be a part of it” says Colter.

Triad Technology Partners’ Chief Executive Officer Bridget Dunnington states, “Colter’s track record as a true bridge builder between government and industry at In-Q-Tel reflects Triad’s true mission. Our fervent goal as a company is to ensure that we consistently help our government customers get the best possible value from their technology investments.”

“Connecting industry thought leaders whose vanguard technologies solve critical Government IT problems with the customers who need them is what Colter has done in the trenches for the past decade. Whether it’s helping a vendor partner understand the nuances of contracting and grow their Federal business, or a valued customer striving to solve an important IT challenge, we know Colter will make a tremendous impact as we continue to enable effective IT solutions for the Public Sector ” added Bridget.
